Monster measuring

Can you match each monster to its cup of tea?

Each monster has a speech bubble indicating its tea preference:

- Orange rabbit-like monster: "I need 1 l of tea."
- Blue octopus-like monster: "I just want 10 ml."
- Pink cloud-like monster: "250 ml please."
- Red fish-like monster: "1.5 l for me."
- Blue whale-like monster: "I need a $\frac{1}{2}$ litre."

Tea items include: a teapot, a cup of tea, a mug, a thermos, and a bowl of tea. A large orange box contains the text: "How much tea do the tea monsters drink in total? You can use this space for working out."

Scenario 1: A grey monster is in a bathtub. Text: "This monster has used 50 l of water in its bath."

Scenario 2: A blue monster is next to a bathtub. Text: "How much water do you think this monster has used?"

Scenario 1: A blue rabbit-like monster is next to a sign that says: "I need to nap for half an hour." The sign also has a blank space for "Wake me up in minutes."

Scenario 2: A red monster is next to a sign that says: "I need to nap for three quarters of an hour." The sign also has a blank space for "Wake me up in minutes."

Each monster is juggling a set of weights adding up to 200 g.

Each of my weights is g.

Billy and the Mini Monsters

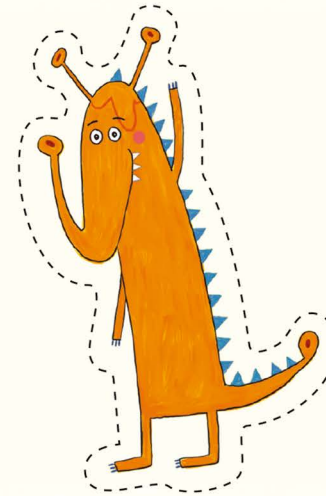

Make your own Mini Monster puppet

1. Cut carefully around the dotted lines
2. Tape or glue a lolly stick to the back of your puppet. If you don't have any lolly sticks at home, you can use a drinking straw, a twig or you can just tape the monster to your finger.
3. Play with your puppet! You could crouch under a table and hold up your puppet so that it sticks up from behind. Make it move and talk.
